A Different Perspective- Jack's story Claire Totty

Description written by Natasha Conde, from Elance

A Different Perspective, written by Claire Totty, is a brave attempt at the telling of a heartfelt tale about a scared puppy named Jack. What makes this story brave is not simply that it dares to take a peak into the dark cages of animal abuse, but that it is written from the point of view of a dog. Reminiscent of Mark Haddon's The Curious Incident of a Dog in the Night-Time, the story is written with a child-like innocence. Through the eyes of the Cavalier King Charles Spaniel, Totty introduces us to the dynamic world of dogs where family is not just composed of one's furry friends, but the people who take care of them as well. The reader also becomes acquainted with members of the blended family who are referred to as "the monsters." The foreboding couple, Sue and Philip, who are a source of much pain in the story, are described with such humanity that even they don't escape our sympathy. This is a truly unique look at the impact that pets have on our lives. Never before has so much insight into the world of a dog been made available to the lay reader. Totty's natural compassion towards animals is laid bare and, at points, leads to heartbreaking revelations: "Piper had some sort of problem, and she threw poor little Rosie into the air and Rosie died. Sue said that Charlotte, her eldest, had found her when she came back from school. It was assumed that Piper had simply snapped and had a go at Rosie, resulting in her death." While A Different Perspective is replete with difficult moments, it is Totty's true love for animals that eventually allows the characters in this book (including Totty's own character) to experience salvation.
