On her way to meet with her mother's new husband, Lilly gets into a snow storm and her car breaks. She decides to walk to the main road, but loses her way and is fortunate to find a lone cabin in the woods.

The cabin belongs to Henry, who tells her that it is his hiding place, where he comes every year to forget about the outside world. Right away he tells her that he doesn't want to know anything about her and that he is not saying anything about himself.

There is an immediate attraction between the two of them and by the end of the evening they end up in bed together. The storm goes on for another day and Lilly is forced to stay in the cabin. They talk a lot, have sex and laugh together, avoiding everything related to the outside world.

When the snow stops, Henry helps her to call for help and they part ways, sure that they will not meet again. So, imagine Lilly's surprise, when that very same evening she is introduced to her new stepbrother, the notorious Henry Willson.
