I am a professional photojournalist. I shoot photographs for a living, every day, have done for more than 30 years, and I’ve earned a good living from it. Many years ago, when I first started out in this industry I had a tough go of it; it was just as competitive 30 years ago as it today, maybe even more so because back then there were no online outlets – stock photo agencies, Kindle, and the like.

Very early on, my mentor – what a great guy - showed me the basics of good photography, the three critical ingredients that must be present in every good photograph. They are:

Good composition – if it’s not pleasing to the eye, it’s not pleasing

Acceptable focus (notice I didn’t say perfect focus).

Perfect exposure – no blocked out shadows or blown highlights.

I’ll show how to accomplish these three things, almost instantly. Will I show you all there is to know about them? Nope, not in this book, that would take a couple of volumes, but I will teach you just enough about them to vastly improve the quality of your photos.
