A cold war experiment gone wrong.

A test facility under the guise of 'orphanage'.

Subjects becoming too powerful to manage.

The CIA tried to end it, but failed.

The children of Whitemarsh Hall are the next step in human evolution.

"A New Name In Thrillers..." Best Selling Author, Glenn Meade.

Russia and America were at war for 45 years. MAD, or Mutually Assured Destruction, restrained the military on both sides.

It was a 'cold' war.

The spy agencies of both nations though, operated without limits, without morals but not without an element of fear. The children of 'Whitemarsh Hall' were feared the most. Sought out for their natural psychic talents, the young stars were put to work as psy-spies.

Under the guidance of the military and using a mind technique called Remote Viewing, from a thousand miles away the young psy-spies 'see' in their minds eye, secrets they were not supposed to see and ultimately open doors that should not open for a thousand more years.

"The human mind is the coming leap in human evolution, the next big step is waiting, preparing, deep in our subconscious." - Sub C.
